& GRAIN

January 10, 1967

Before Winter Came

Meetings of the Leonardville Philosophical and Horseshoe Appreciation Society have been curtailed by recent snows and cold weather, but the membership will all be back in force when temperatures mellow and ice thaws.

As in all small towns, there are gathering spots for friendly talk and just soaking up the sunshine. This caucus was in session in Leonardville, in Western Riley County. They were all watching a horseshoe match between Ed Fosha (above) and Wally Johnson.

When the weather gets frigid, the members all go inside, leaving the outdoor fun to younger people like the young lady below.

Snow Sculpture

Fran Forke, Odell, Nebr., poses with the elephant and man's head she and her brother Dan made during the recent snow. The creations were completed in about three hours. Fran is a freshman at Concordia Teachers College, Seward, Nebr. Dan is a senior at Odell High School. No political significance in the elephant. The Forkes are Democrats.

No One Supplement Fits All Cattle

Select the Purina Steer Fatena "Built-to-Fit" your conditions

Cattle of different sizes require different nutrients. Grains and roughages vary in quality and nutrient content. One supplement cannot supply what is needed under all conditions.

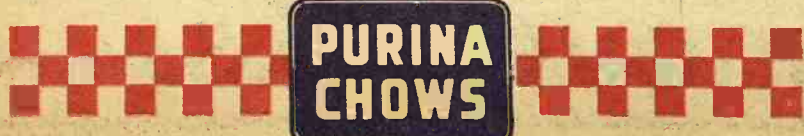

That's why Purina research nutritionists developed five different Steer Fatenas. Each of these new supplements carries a different level of protein and a different carbohydrate-vitamin-mineral level. Each was formulated to deliver top efficiency and low-cost gains.

For example, if you are finishing cattle and have plenty of corn or milo to feed, and your roughage is not the best, Special Steer Fatena L5 (50% protein) is the supplement "built-to-fit" your conditions. Or maybe you want the convenience of a supplement with the roughage "built-in." Then you should feed Steer Fatena BIR.™

Whatever your choice, you gain the benefit of Purina's years of beef cattle research when you feed Purina. Whether you are finishing, growing or wintering cattle, there's a right Purina supplement for your cattle. Get it at the sign of the red and white Checkerboard.

When was the last time you priced PURINA?

Wood, 64, owner of Wood's grocery at Cawker City, was trampled to death recently by a heifer he was preparing to butcher.

Mr. Wood operated a custom butchering service at the rear of his store in connection with his grocery business. Jim Barrett, Mitchell County sheriff, said he apparently was killed after climbing into a chute with the heifer.

Crop Signups Start February 6

A four-week signup period for the 1967 wheat, feed grain and upland cotton programs has been set beginning Feb. 6 and ending March 3, according to USDA.

Signups for the 1967 Crop-land Adjustment Program now underway will conclude March 3.

State ASCS offices which determine that their county offices will be ready for the commodity programs earlier may start before Feb. 6.

End Of Razorback

Wild razorback hogs can sometimes still be found in the wilds of the Arkansas and Missouri Ozarks. These hunters near Cassville, Mo., felled a razorback which dressed out at almost 400 pounds. The hog had forced farmers to flee and wrecked fences in search of food in recent weeks. It was stopped by rifle shots.

Farm Fresh Feeds! Pure as Country Air With a VIBRA-MILL Feed Factory...

Feed delivered from town just can't equal the freshness, the palatability of feed made right on your farm. In addition, the feed vehicle from town or the next farm — even the shoes of the driver — could be bringing profit-robbing disease into your feedlot or dairy barn. Sadly, disease quite often costs much more than a VIBRA-MILL's low cost way to prevent it! With a Viking VIBRA-MILL Automatic Electric Feed Processing System, you can precisely blend pre-set amounts of one or more home-grown grains and supplements into an automatic mixing and grinding operation for balanced, "disease-free" rations. Yet the cost of owning, operating and maintaining a VIBRA-MILL is only 90¢ per ton of feed! Best of all, with a VIBRA-MILL you probably have HALF a feed factory ALREADY with your present farm buildings. Separate control panel, blenders and mill make it possible to install a VIBRA-MILL system in an existing building with few or no alterations! Send for VIBRA-MILL details today!

New Carpeting Has Great Durability; Easily Cleaned

Floor pacers, rejoice! A broadloom carpet that will stand up to 57 miles of pacing between cleanings is now on the market.

The foot-worthy floor covering, made of Kodel II polyester fiber was traffic-tested under laboratory conditions. It was subjected to 20,000 traffic cycles, each cycle consisting of one person walking across the room.

On the basis of a room fifteen feet wide, that adds up to 300,000 feet, a lot of pacing, but the man-made fiber carpeting endured the punishment stoically.

At test's end, the carpet was examined microscopically. It showed good texture retention, excellent cleanability. One manufacturer reported that stains ranging from lipstick to shoe polish were removed with no change of color or texture.

For non-floor pacers, another test produced good news. Carpet samples were subjected to 100 pounds of pressure per square inch area, simulating the weight of an occupied chair, for a period of 24 hours. By the following day, the springy, bouncy fiber had regained nearly all of its original thickness.

Available in twelve bright, rich colors, the rugged carpeting is a walk-away choice to win over floor pacers and a shoo-in to stand up to sit down'ers.

1 cup cooked raisins
2 cups raw chopped apples
1 cup nuts

Cream shortening and sugar.
Add eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition. Sift dry ingredients together and add to shortening mixture, alternately with coffee. Fold in apples, raisins and nuts. Pour into a greased and floured 9x12-inch pan.
Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes or until done. Icing is optional and not really necessary.

"This makes a big cake, and could be made in two smaller pans. It could also be served with whipped cream. It freezes well."

Mrs. Arlan Swanson, 202 N.
Adams, Council Grove, sent the

Recipe Correction

A recipe correction was received from Mrs. Ralph Weller, R 4, Manhattan:

"In the printing of my Vegetable Casserole recipe in the December 20, 1966 issue, I noted a mistake.

"It should not have 4 cups green beans; only 2 cups each of green beans, corn and carrots, all drained.

"Sorry if it was my error. "Everything else is O.K."

Flame Technique In Hybrid Work

Fire is being tested as a tool for producing hybrid sorghum seed for Kansas in experiments underway at Kansas State University, Manhattan.

In the past if a sorghum breeder wished to cross two varieties with different flowering dates, he had to plant the varieties at different times to allow them to mature together.

Now Dr. R. L. Vanderlip, an assistant professor of agronomy, is studying the possibility of holding back the earlier maturing variety by applying flame—either at the top or sides of the plant — during early stages of development.

Vanderlip says the fact that fire holds back maturity of plants first was noticed when flaming techniques were used to control weeds in row crops. He now is experimenting with fire at different times and in differing intensities to achieve better control of flowering dates. The K-State agronomist so far has been able to delay maturity up to two weeks.

The experiments are being conducted at Kansas Agricultural Experiment Station fields at Manhattan and Hutchinson.

IH Sales, Net Both Up In '66

International Harvester finished its fiscal year October 31 with a 10% sales increase and a 12% profit improvement over 1965.

The final figures: $109.6 million net earnings on sales of $2.6 billion.

Officials said they thought truck sales and construction equipment might decline in 1967 but that they thought farm equipment business, described as "outstanding" in 1966, would be even better in 1967.

Said President Harry Bercher: "The market for farm products is strong, the 1967 U.S. acreage of certain major crops is to be increased, and the need for productive farm machines will certainly be present."

Grain Gone, CCC Bins Disappear

Government storage bins are coming down.

The round bins and quonset huts that were the symbol of surplus grain are being sold. Farmers are picking up the bins for storage on farms and the huts for machine shops and housing for farm implements.

Non-farmers are buying them, too, but for agricultural purposes as specified by the Department of Agriculture.

Once Had 238,439

In 1957 the government owned 238,439 structures in 24 states. These had a combined capacity of nearly 1 billion bushels of wheat, corn, oats, barley, soybeans and other grains. On December 1 the number was down to 154,000 structures in 15 states and a capacity of 636 million bushels, a reduction of one-third in storage capacity since the peak year 1957.

Nearly all the storage structures sold, representing more than 300 million bushels of capacity, were moved through public sales for farm or commercial use in the period between July 1, 1963, and the first of this month.

The storage facilities cost the government about 234 million dollars or about 24 cents a bushel at the height of the surplus production period. No figures are available yet on the amount the government recovered in the sale of the bins and other storage facilities although the amount is small in relation to cost. Many of the storage structures are in poor condition and their depreciation recognized by the government.

Some for $120

Small bins have been sold at auction for about $120. Larger bins were sold on bids as high as $235. The quonset huts have gone for as much as $500.

One example of the reduction in government storage is DeWitt County, Illinois, which had a storage capacity of more than 3,400,000 bushels but is now down to 490,000 bushels.

Most of the storage facilities are in the Mid-West, where most of the grain is produced. The bins are of steel or aluminum construction and located on leased land which the government is turning back to farmers or county governments.

Leeway on Sales

The Commodity Credit Corporation, the government's price support and commodity agency, has opened its storage sales policy to enable public and non-profit organizations to buy bins for nonagricultural use. Officials said they expected these groups to be interested in the quonset huts rather than the round bins. These structures have capacities of 25,000 to 55,000 bushels of grain and measure at least 32 feet high to 92 feet long. Buyers must arrange for moving the structures and installing them elsewhere.

Previously the nonfarmers acquiring the surplus bins had been agricultural supply concerns such as seed and feed dealers and fertilizer supplies.

The decline in farm stocks has put the Commodity Credit Corporation in its best financial position since 1953. This institution had only 4.5 billion dollars of its assets invested in farm products last November 1. This compared with 6.3 billion a year ago and a record of 8.5 billion in 1959. The latest investment is the lowest reported since the 4.4 billion of October, 1953. Officials said that year-end figures probably would show less than 4 billion invested in farm stocks.

The continued depletion of farm stocks is shown by the agency's figures for November 1, the latest available. At that time it owned only about 273 million bushels of wheat worth 535 million. This compared with 610 million bushels worth more than 1.2 billion dollars a year earlier.

Dry Year, But Still Record Sorghum Output

The 1966 sorghum grain crop was estimated by the Agriculture Department at 720 million bushels, a record.

This was 7 percent above 1965 and exceeded the 1960-64 average by 34 percent.

The three leading sorghum grain states — Texas, Nebraska and Kansas — accounted for 83 per cent of the nation's output.

The department said the expected yield of 56.1 bushels an acre for 1966 is a record, 4.5 bushels above the previous high in 1965 and nearly 14 bushels above average.

Over much of the great plains, planting of dry land sorghums for grain was later than usual because of dry soil. An early freeze caught some acreage before plants reached maturity but the harvest progressed under near-ideal weather.

In nearly all states, hot weather and short periods of drought tended to dim prospects early in the season but were offset later by adequate rains. Sorghum grain was harvested from 12.8 million acres, 1 percent less than 1965, but 2 percent above average.

Business As Usual

Ethel Stuver, owner of the St. Clere store since 1928, hands Gene Lasswell his change. St. Clere, one of the older towns in Pottawatomie County, is the home of Jess Willard of prize fighting fame.

Eggs From A Rooster? Scientist Thinks It Can Be Done

Now comes a technique to change the sex of a chicken.

It has reduced the rooster — once the proud king of the barnyard — to a cowering, hen-pecked bird.

And it has placed him in a netherland between the sexes, neither a he nor a she but an it. A neuter rooster.

But the man who originated the technique hopes that the rooster, once his sex is reversed completely, may be laying eggs.

Dr. Edward F. Godfrey, associate professor of poultry science at the University of Maryland, has been trying for 15 years to overcome the economic problem of the useless rooster. A featherbedding rooster, so to speak.

Godfrey already has produced a rooster that looks like a hen. But the problem is that it can't lay eggs.

He explained Monday that about 40 males and 40 females are hatched from 100 eggs. But only eight males per 100 females are needed for breeding.

The rest of the so-called egg production roosters — or cockerels — are an economic burden to the farmer.

The cockerel grows so slowly that he weighs only 1 1/2 pounds after eight weeks, contrasted with nearly four pounds for the male broiler bred for fast growth. Yet the cockerel eats just as much feed.

He said a day-old cockerel is worth one cent while a day-old broiler is worth 42 cents.

To bring about the sex transformation, Dr. Godfrey injects eggs with synthetic female hormones during the first 60 hours of incubation when the embryos in a sexually indifferent stage.

More injections are made at intervals until the chicks are hatched.

The black male chicks, offspring of Rhode Island red females and Barred Plymouth Rock females, are distinguished only by a white spot on their head.

They are culled out and examined for physiological changes. So far, roosters have been produced that have oviducts, or egg-forming organs.

Concept of Kaycee Sports Complex

Spurning the domed stadium style of Houston or the multi-purpose stadiums at St. Louis and Atlanta, a sports committee at Kansas City has suggested a 2-stadium complex, both surrounded by dual-use parking facilities. If engineering studies prove it feasible, the football stadium could have some sort of removable covering, as indicated by the framework of broken lines. The football stadium would seat 75,000 and the baseball stadium 50,000.

Altho the committee had seriously considered a downtown site, it proposed a 350-acre location in Leeds, east of Kansas City, pointing out that land costs, parking problems and a time factor had made it desirable over the downtown location.

The cost of land acquisition, site improvements and parking at Leeds was estimated at $14.1 million and the estimate for downtown was $57.6 million. The total cost of the 2-stadium proposal at Leeds was estimated at $54.1 million if the football stadium is covered and $49 million if it is not.

Altho the committee gave other reasons for selecting a 2-stadium proposal, one reason obviously was the inability to have a meeting with Charles O. Finley, owner of the Kansas City A's, who presumably would have been the prime tenant of a multi-purpose stadium. Lamar Hunt, owner of the Kansas City Chiefs football team, has expressed pleasure at the plans for the football stadium and said he likely would be a major buyer of bonds from the stadium authority.

66 FCIC Losses In State Were $2 Million

Insured wheat, corn, grain sorghum and soybean farmers in 100 Kansas counties are receiving nearly $2 million in federal crop insurance payments for 1966 losses, Russell Bowling, state director for the Federal Crop Insurance Corp., has said.

Bowling also said that all-risk federal crop insurance was made available, effective the first of the year, to soybean producers in six additional counties — Atchison, Brown, Doniphan, Douglas, Wilson and Woodson — and to grain sorghum growers in four of them — Atchison, Doniphan, Douglas and Woodson.

Although only preliminary figures are available, Bowling said, the bulk of the loss payments, about $1.8 million, will go to wheat farmers in hardest hit counties of Barton, Ellis, Ellsworth, Finney, Rush, Trego, Cheyenne, Greeley and Ness, and less hit counties of Gove, Grant, Hodgeman, Kearney, Lincoln, Logan, McPherson, Rice, Rooks, Russell, Thomas and Wichita.

Another $200,000 will be paid to grain sorghum, corn and soybean farmers primarily in Dickinson, Washington, Butler, Finney, Reno, Scott, Sedgwick, Stanton and Sumner counties.

The remainder of the insured losses were in scattered areas of the 100 counties where some payments are being made, Bowling said.

Much of the losses are due to drought, he said.

Federal Crop Insurance now serves Kansas farmers with all-risk programs on wheat in 101 counties, corn in 18 counties, grain sorghum in 53 counties and soybeans in 20 counties.

Bowling said policyholders who did not have a loss in 1966 will benefit from a five percent discount in premium this year. Previously it took three years of no losses before discounts were given.

Corn Picture Continues Change

The corn situation and outlook have been changing again. The rate of corn use has been lower than was reported earlier. The 1966 crop set a new record. Exports are slow. Livestock and poultrymen are being squeezed between high costs for corn and low prices for their products.

Let's begin with the revised estimate of the 1965 crop. In December of each year the USDA issues a publication called "Crop Production, Annual Summary." This publication always includes revisions of the crop estimates for the previous year, as well as estimates for the year just ending.

The revised estimate of the 1965 corn crop was 4,084 million bushels, 87 million less than the figure that had been in use during practically all of the past year. This change indicates that the amount of corn used for feed in 1965-66 was 87 million bushels less than was previously calculated. (There wasn't as much corn in the crib as we thought, so when it was empty we had fed less than we thought.)

It has also been suggested that CCC stocks of corn at the beginning of the 1965-66 marketing year were not so large as was reported at the time. If that is true, then the rate of corn use was correspondingly smaller during the marketing year ended last October 1.

We have seen no revisions of CCC stock figures. It seems reasonable to suppose, however, that there was some shrinkage of stocks kept in CCC bins over the years. Much of this shrinkage might not have become apparent until the bins were emptied.

When the estimate of the 1965 crop was revised downward, it left the 1966 crop as the biggest ever produced. The Annual Summary report listed the 1966 corn crop at 4,103 million bushels. This figure is 26 million bushels less than the estimate in November, but it is 19 million more than the revised estimate of the 1965 crop.

The total supply available for this marketing year now appears to be about 4,950 million bushels, 6 percent less than last year. Another comparison shows that supply for this marketing year is 11 percent more than the amount used and exported in the year ending October 1.

Exports of corn from October 1 to December 9 totaled only 105 million bushels, 31 percent less than a year before. There are various reasons: Much of the corn now being exported is of poor quality. Exports of sorghum grain totaled 55 million bushels, up 36 percent from last year. Other countries have larger feed supplies this year.

Cattle feeders are getting perhaps 70 to 90 cents a bushel for the corn fed to cattle now being marketed. Broiler producers aren't getting much more: broiler prices recently dropped to 10 cents a pound! That certainly won't encourage the expansion that has been expected.

The hog-corn price ratio in November was only 15.2, well below the 10-year average for the month, which is 16.5. While some hog producers can make money with a ratio of 15.2, it may shut off the expansion that has been under way.

Many farmers remain bullish. If enough hold their corn, prices will go higher. But corn must be sold sometime. There are big crops in Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Ohio. There is also a big sorghum grain crop — 720 million bushels. That's 7 percent more than last year and 34 percent more than the 5-year average.

Where Goes The Hog Market?

A year ago hogs were selling for $26. Now they are $18. Are prices going to go way back down to where they were three years ago? What does Grass & Grain hear about this?

Chas. Doubravsky
WICHITA
Hog forecasts change about as quickly as hog prices. But the June-November pig report showed only a 5% increase from a year ago after hogmen had said they would increase farrowings 10% in this period. The intentions for December: May show only a 3% increase. Those are two criteria which should lead a hogman to think the market will get better.

CCC Saving Its Money

The Agriculture Department's $14.5 billion bank for financing its farm programs is in its best financial condition since 1953 — thanks to declining stocks of farm commodities, particularly grains.

As of last Nov. 1, this institution — known as the Commodity Credit Corporation — had only $4.5 billion of its assets invested in farm products compared with $6.3 billion a year earlier and a record $8.5 billion in February and November of 1959.

The previous low investment was $4.4 billion in October 1953. Officials said an appraisal of the CCC's present position probably would show it had less than $4 billion tied up in commodities. Stocks of some commodities had declined further since Nov. 1.

The CCC uses its money mainly to make price support loans to growers on their crops, to purchase surplus products and to make payments to farmers who comply with the government's crop production adjustment programs.

The CCC is authorized by law to borrow up to $14.5 billion to carry out its assigned duties.

The improvement in the agency's financial position is shown also by the fact that it had only $9.6 billion of this borrowing authority in use last month compared with $12.6 billion a year earlier.

Congress follows the practice of reimbursing the corporation for losses it incurs in carrying out its financial responsibilities. Its appropriated funds are used, where possible, to pay off its borrowings.

McManis Ford Sold To Burns-Salisbury

MANHATTAN — McManis Tractor & Impl. Co., a leading Ford farm machinery dealer in the Manhattan area, has been sold by the widow of Alex McManis to Burns-Salisbury, Inc., it was announced this week.

Bob Burns, one of the owners, will be in charge of operations as general manager. Max Stowell, a McManis salesman, has been named manager of the farm department. Burns will concentrate on Ford industrial equipment and industrial hardware.

The new owner comes from Wichita, where for 12 years he has with Farmers & Bankers Life Insurance Co. He has three children, 7 to 12 years of age.

The new firm has an affiliation with M. B. Salisbury Co. of Topeka. All the McManis personnel remain with the new company, except Larry McManis, son of the late Alex McManis. Larry will return to an accounting firm in Salina.

USDA Drops Hog Serum Program

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has decided to end a 30-year-old marketing agreement and order to regulate the handling of anti-hog cholera serum and hog cholera virus, effective Dec. 31, after review of data and views on the subject submitted in the past two months.

The principal purpose for initiating the marketing agreement and order over two decades ago was to provide a substantial reserve of serum to protect U.S. swine against serious outbreaks of hog cholera.

Lots of Growls In Slow Property Tax Reappraisal

Reassessment of property at 30% of justifiable value — ordered by the legislature in 1963 — is getting close to its deadline.

The 1963 legislature ordered the uniform valuation of property in the state to be completed by 1968. Counties which fail to do so run the risk of losing state funds.

As of right now, many of the counties in the state have quite a ways to go, and those counties in the midst of the procedure are finding something less than enthusiasm from constituents.

Two of the most recent examples of taxpayer rebellion are in Ottawa and Osage counties.

Both counties are being reassessed by the J. M. Cleminshaw Appraisal Co. of Cleveland and protests are being heard.

Two public hearings were heard in Osage County and as many as 600 taxpayers turned out to voice their displeasure with the new assessments.

Tom Valentine, regional manager of the firm with offices in Mission, has been quoted as saying his firm never had met with so much resistance as in Osage County. He said the number of objectors in the county may reach 2000.

Some Osage countians complained their property valuations on paper have been increased as much as 10 times the present figure.

The Cleminshaw firm also is meeting resistance in Ottawa County where many property owners have refused to let them enter their homes.

Larry Adams, one of the company's appraisers in Ottawa County, said that "cooperation of property owners is something less than we had hoped for when we started our work."

The firm is also making the reappraisals in Ellsworth, Johnson and Morris counties but the work isn't far along.

Does widespread dissatisfaction naturally follow reappraisal?

"Not necessarily," says Dean Sacks, an appraiser with the State Property Valuation Department.

"You're going to have 5% of every county squealing like a pig under an iron gate, but what's 1000 complaints out of, say, 150,000 parcels of land in Sedgwick County?" he asked.

Sacks said the 1963 law was passed to bring about uniform assessment throughout Kansas.

"It doesn't matter if the figure is 100% or 50% or 1%," he said. "It was aimed at balancing every county."

He pointed out that Wyandotte County was assessed at an average of 10% while Washington County was on 44% and Doniphan County at 45%. He said some western counties were assessed at 12 to 15%.

The taxpayer does have recourse if he feels he hasn't been treated fairly, Sacks emphasized.

The reassessing people will hold public hearings to listen to complaints, the taxpayer can appeal in May when his county commission sits as a board of equalization, and he can appeal to the State Board of Tax Appeals.

ADD WEIGHT, EVEN IN WINTER?
"winterize" your cattle with nature's richest source of protein

Much of the feed consumed by wintering cattle is used to meet basic energy requirements. When those needs are not met, body tissue breaks down. Cattle lose weight. You lose money. But now you can actually "winterize" your cattle against costly weight losses. Simply supplement your winter grass with Sunflower Brand Soybean Meal Pellets. Sunflower Brand is made from nature's richest source of protein. It is also highly digestible and palatable. Cattle thrive on it. Often add weight, even in winter. Reach market bloom earlier in the spring. To protect your profits, "winterize" your herd with Sunflower... the Brand with the Bloom... made from nature's richest source of protein.

Available in 44% Soybean Meal Pellets and 36%, 32% or 22% Formulated Range Cubes.

ELLSWORTH SCD
MEETS JANUARY 16

ELLSWORTH—The annual meeting for the Ellsworth County Soil Conservation District will be held here January 16. Gerald Tomanek, biology professor at Fort Hays State College, will be speaker. Ellsworth SCD supervisors are Charles Heitschmidt, Hazen Fleming, Delbert Bruning, Harrison Moyer, and Milas Doubrava.

Steady Line On Meat Imports

U. S. exports of livestock, meat and meat products to all countries were valued at $487.2 million in 1965 — about the same as in 1964.

Increased sales of tallow, hides and skins, variety meats, and live cattle largely offset appreciable declines in sales of beef, pork and lard, says USDA.

For the first 10 months of 1966, however, exports of livestock, meat and meat products amounted to $397.1 million, compared with $403.3 million in the comparable period of 1965. Export sales of variety meats, hides and skins, and live cattle continued to increase; but beef, lard and tallow export declined sharply. For tallow, this was a reversal of an upward trend in exports extending over a period of more than a decade.

Exports of tallow and greases in 1965 rose sharply to $195.4 million, $15.5 million above the previous year's level. For the first 10 months of 1966, however, sales were running about $15 million below those of the corresponding 1965 period. The reason was short supply and higher prices resulting from reduced slaughter.

U. S. Hides and skins are in great demand in foreign markets, and exports are rounding out their third straight record year. From the $92.7 million of 1964, they rose to $108.3 million in 1965, and that figure has already been exceeded by the $126.4 million rung up during the first 10 months of 1966.

This increase has occurred even though foreign supplies of hides are relatively large, owing to seasonal increases in cattle slaughter in Western Europe and to a recovery of beef production and an increasing level of cattle slaughter in Argentina.

Exports of variety meats on the upgrade for the past five years, rose in 1965 from $47.9 million to $56 million, and they maintained their uptrend during 1966, reaching $49 million in the first 10 months — $5 million more than in the comparable 1965 period.

NFO Says It Will Add Hog Station At Wamego

The NFO says it is going to set up a hog collection point at Wamego at the US24-K99 junction.

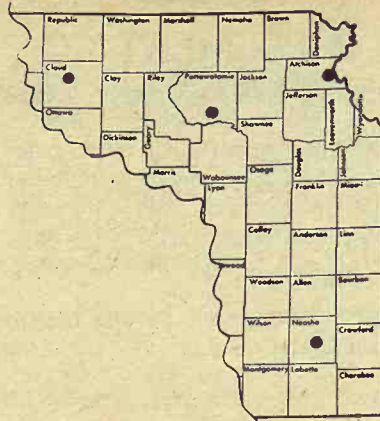

Fred Kilian, Pottawatomie county NFO supporter, says the facility should be in operation by February 1. The facilities are being leased from Floyd Hutchinson, Wamego implement dealer, he said.

Kilian said that the Cudahy Packing Co. of Wichita will buy the hogs at Wamego, buying on grade and paying a base price of $1 under the average top of Kansas City and St. Joseph markets.

Paul Pruitt of Miltonvale will operate the station. Pruitt also operates a hog station at Concordia, one of three NFO hog stations presently operating in the state. The other two are at Atchison and St. Paul. Kilian said that the other stations have been buying from 500 to 1000 hogs each operating day.

The buyer will be at the Wamego station on Fridays, from 9 a.m. until noon, according to the plan, said Kilian.

Annual Watershed Meeting At Salina

More than 100 persons met in Salina last week for a state-wide "Watershed Forum — A Look to the Future."

Sponsored by the State Soil

Conservation committee, the forum especially was for officers and directors of Kansas watershed districts. Also attending were public administrators, lawyers, consulting engineers and others interested in the programs.

Four previous annual forums were in Topeka.

A watershed district is a special unit of government created to alleviate erosion, floodwater or sediment damage and to develop water use and conservation. The size varies but they must include all the drainage above a selected point on a waterway.

Several million acres in Kansas are either in watershed districts or in proposed districts. The units are organized by voters and receive federal aid in project implementation.
